#	INGREDIENT	MASS	VOLUME	PROCEDURE
1				Preheat the oven to 400 °F (204 °C). Keep the butter and buttermilk in the fridge until you need them.
2	Flour, all-purpose	360 g	3 cups	Whisk the flour, baking powder and salt together in a large bowl.
	Baking powder, Davis	14.4 g	1 tbsp
	Kosher salt, Morton	4.8 g	1 tsp
3	Butter, unsalted*, cold, cubed*	85 g	6 tbsp	Rub the cold butter into the flour with your fingertips until it looks like coarse crumbs.
4	Buttermilk*, cold*	240 g	≈1 cup	Make a well in the middle and pour in the buttermilk. Stir until the dough just comes together, then knead it in the bowl until all the flour is taken up. If it's still dry, add up to 15 g more buttermilk.
5	Flour, all-purpose*, for the counter*		a few tbsp	Turn the dough out onto a floured counter. Fold it over and knead gently for 30 s, until soft and smooth. Press it into a rectangle 1 in thick.
6				Cut into 12 squares with the bench scraper, pushing straight down without twisting. Set them on the sheet pan so they just touch. Press a thumb dimple into the center of each.
7				Bake until tall and light gold on top, 15–20 min.

NOTES

- Half batch, from the second column of the notes: 180 g flour, ½ tsp salt, 1½ tsp baking powder, 43 g butter, 120 g buttermilk. Makes 6.
- Alton's version: 340 g flour, 4 tsp baking powder, ¼ tsp baking soda, ¾ tsp kosher salt, 1 oz butter + 2 oz shortening, 8 fl oz buttermilk, cut in 3 in rounds. Squares here since there's no biscuit cutter.
